FRANK'S STORY.

His Residence in Nashville and in Louisville, and his fun With Bligh.

FULL ACCOUNT OF HIS SURRENDER.

Louisville Post.

Frank James, in telling his own story, claimed first that he meant to reform and become a law-abiding resident of Missouri. He said that for twenty-one years he had been outlawed and hunted from state to state like a wild animal. He had learned to suspect his dearest friends, and day and night it was a constant watch with him. In August, 1877, he went to Nashville with his wife in the character of an emigrant. He went under the name of B. J. Woodson. He soon effected the rental of a piece of land from Josiah Walton, on White creek, a few miles from Nashville. For a year he worked ten hours a day on this farm. Then he engaged to a team for a year for the Indiana Lumber Company, on Jeff Hyde's place, driving a four-mule team and taking his meals in the woods with darkies. His boss was T. J. Jefferson, of Ohio, and Frank, like his boss, was a Republican. At the end of this year he rented a farm from Felix Smith, on White Creek, eight miles from Nashville. He remained there till April, 1881. Among his intimate friends there were Charles Eastman, county clerk; J. W. Shute, member of the legislature; Dr. Jordan, Dr. Manlove, Dr. Wm. Hamilton, Sheriff Tim Johnson, Rev. D. Wall, Clint Cantwell, Wm. Bryan, Jr., and others. He said these men would be greatly amazed to hear now that he was Frank James in disguise. The only trouble he ever had there was with a man who took him for a Yankee. It ended in a friendship between the two. He was intimate with detectives Fletch, Horn and Watson, of Nashville, who little dreamed who he was. He accidentally met his brother Jesse in Nashville. He found that Jesse was living near Waverly, Humphreys county, West Tennessee. Jesse was farming and much interested in horses. A year and a half after Jesse moved to North Nashville. Jesse owned the horse Jim Malone at the time. In the fall of 1880, Dick Liddel and Jim Cummings found the James boys in Nashville. Frank does know where either is now. "One day Jim ran away, and fearing he was going to give them up they got under arms. It turned out that Jim got frightened by his surroundings and simply ran away for better security. Just as the boys had got settled once more Jack Ryan was arrested in the neighborhood and taken to Missouri. This broke up the homes of the brothers and they once more became wanderers. He claimed that during their residence near Nashville no one knew their identity.

FRANK IN LOUISVILLE.

We reproduce Frank's very comical account of his experiences in Louisville, and his experience with one of our detectives. He says:

"Do you remember the sensation of a little over a year ago when Captain Bligh, of Louisville, endeavored to trap you near Bloomfield, Ky., by a decoy pay train?"

"Yes, I read the Republican's article on that, it being copied in Courier-Journal. I laughed a good deal over it, especially over the pay train scheme. The article, if I remember right, was not published until about three months after the attempt was made, I can't determine just where I was on the date of Bligh's ingenious enterprise. It is not improbable I was in Louisville, however, as I certainly was not down in the woods hunting for a pay train. You might remark in this immediate connection that if Captain Bligh will go to Rufer's Hotel and examine the register between the dates of the 10th and the 15th of last October he will find that Fred, Thorn, of Virginia, stayed there over night. I was in the city a week that time, but arrived there late at night, and not caring to wake up my friends I put up at Rufer's till morning. To tell you the truth I never entertained any fear of capture by the detectives. Now I knew that George Hunter was working all the time to get a chance to bag us, and when that negro was killed in the woods down there, and Hunter and Larry Hagen made that midnight raid on a hut in the hope of capturing some of us, I was not surprised. I felt certain that the killing of the negro would be charged to us, although I was the only man in that section, so far as I know, and I was not within a hundred miles of the place. Being aware that Hunter was on the qui vive I felt confident that some place or other would be raided soon, just for the chances of finding somebody. It is a practice of mine, when I am being hunted for, to sit down and figure what course the detectives will take in their search, and then I take the other one. I have never to my knowledge misjudged them in my guesses. No, the only danger we had to apprehend was from give-aways or traitors in our households."

"By the way, what was the true story about George Shepherd's pretended killing of Jesse some years ago?"

"I am sure I

DON'T KNOW THE DETAILS.

All I know is that it was a great hoax. Jesse was down at Nashville at the time and my wife read him a telegraphic account of it from the newspapers the morning after it occurred. We laughed a good deal over it, but never learned what it all meant. George Shepherd, by the way, is entitled to distinction as being the only outlaw Detective Bligh ever caught. George, you know, has only one eye, and Bligh came in on his blind side and nabbed him."

The prisoner in further conversation said that in no case did the publications place the locality of the boys correctly. While in Denison, Texas, once he was put down for a train robbery in Muncie, Ks. He said they never spent their time in lonesome, retired places, but mostly in cities. They never wore disguises and traveled mostly by rail. He carried usually two large Remingtons and a Winchester rifle. He said he was a good shot with pistol or rifle. He finally declared himself to be without means, and if allowed desired to go to farming. He has a wife and little son.

THE SURRENDER.

The story of the surrender is thus graphically told by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

"It having become known throughout the capitol building shortly before 5 o'clock that Frank James would at that hour put in an appearance and surrender himself, the heads of the departments and their clerks, with others who were in and about the building, assembled in the executive office to await the arrival of the noted outlaw. Among those present beside the governor were Judge Henry, of the Supreme Court; Phil. E. Chappell, State treasurer; John Walker, State auditor; Adjutant Gen. Waddell, Major T. O. Towles and others, besides the representatives of the press.

The hands of the clock on the south wall of the office were close upon the hour of 5 when the expectant ears of those present heard the sound of footsteps entering the rotunda of the building. A moment later the well-known form of Major John W. Edwards appeared in the open doorway. As he advanced into the room he was followed by a man nearly six feet in height, of slender, neat and trim build, who walked erect, and with a quiet, easy and self-possessed gait, to the middle of the room. Stopping in front of the governor, Major Edwards said:

"Governor and gentlemen, this is Frank James. He is here to give himself up." This brief introduction brought face to face the executive of Missouri and the noted outlaw, whose name has been a terror in this state and is familiar throughout our land, if not the whole world. It was a scene without a precedent in the annals of the state, and to all present was intensely interesting and dramatic. To all appearances Frank James was the coolest and least moved man in the room. While Major Edwards was introducing him his countenance was as quiet and calm in its expression as if the business in hand were no concern of his. He advanced a step toward the governor, and by a dexterous movement unbuckled a belt from around his lithe body and, holding it toward the governor, said:

"Governor, I am Frank James. I surrender my arms to you. I have removed the loads from them; they are not loaded. They have not been out of my possession since 1864. No other man has ever used them since then. I now give them to you personally. I deliver myself to you and the law."

Governor Crittenden received the proffered belt, pistol and cartridges, and with characteristic courtesy requested Frank James to be seated, saying that he was very glad to meet him, particularly in this manner.

Frank James answered that he had come in and surrendered himself because he desired to do as he had done for years—that is, live the life of a law-abiding citizen. He hoped to be able to prove that he was not so bad as he had been painted. Although he had been living the life of a quiet, orderly and law-abiding citizen for four years he well knew that everything criminal that had been committed of late years had been credited to him. To the governor he said, with more earnestness in his tone than he had hitherto shown. "If some one were to assassinate you, although I might be able to prove myself entirely innocent, I would not be able to convince people that I was guiltless of the crime. They have been in the habit of attributing all manner of crimes to me, and are ready to believe anything they hear."

Reference being made to the time he had been to the State, Frank James said he had not been in Missouri for over a year previous to the Sunday, September 24, when he reached St. Louis.

Governor Crittenden said: "I have received over half a bushel of letters from you, or from those professing to be you. I have received them from not only three or four different men on the same day, but from several different States."

"Yes," answered the outlaw; "this proves that any crime, no matter by whom committed, is likely to be laid to me. I have surrendered because I wished this to end, and to prove, as I can that for four years I have been a law-abiding citizen, and that I have been painted blacker than I am. I do it for my wife and child's sake. I am in your hands, to do with me as you see best."

Indeed, no one would take the quiet, calm man, with the wide, open and frank looking eyes, for the outlaw who had held sway over Missouri for so long. His clear complexion indicated habits of temperance and there was not an ounce of superfluous flesh upon his frame. He showed himself to be a man who could patiently undergo great hardship, while his eyes, though in no wise, restless, saw and closely observed everything about him. They may or may not have noticed a pile of papers near the wall, back of the door through which he had entered. Those were the remaining copies, printed posters, of the famous proclamation issued by the governor last year, offering rewards for the capture and conviction of Frank and Jesse James. His letter above published, which Governor Crittenden had taken from the safe and given your correspondent to copy but a few moments before Major Edwards and himself arrived, was handed about among those present and read with interest. It was not long before the news of Frank James surrender spread to every part of the city. It created more excitement than anything that has taken place here for many years, and a stream of curious people set toward the McCarty House, where, until nearly 11 o'clock, the great surrendered held a levee. Even from the "Kingdom of Calaway" there came a delegation, all solid for Frank James, and considering it an honor to be allowed to take him by the hand.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCT. 11, 1882.

TERMS:—The EVENING BULLETIN is published daily, and served free of postage at 6 cents per week; 25 cents per month; 75 cents per three months; $1.50 per six months, and $3 per year, payable in advance.

THE EVENING BULLETIN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION IN THIS CITY, CHESTER AND ABERDEEN, OHIO, THAN ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN MARYSVILLE.

The Exposition at Cincinnati was this year attended by about 100,000 people more than last year.

The Ashland Express says that Judge Robert Riddle will be a candidate for appellate Judge in this district.

Five circus companies have failed this season, and only two have made enough money to carry them comfortably through the winter.

The primary election in the Seventh district to decide whether Blackburn or Owens shall be the Democratic nominee for congress will take place next Saturday.

It has been decided by the Illinois Supreme Court that freight discriminations, under which shipments to a given point are charged a higher rate than shipments to the same point from a more distant station, are illegal.

It is stated at the pension office in Washington, that four hundred thousand cases are now pending, one hundred thousand more will probably come in a year, and a pension case filed to-day, at the present rate of progress, would be adjudicated in 1886.

COURIER-JOURNAL: The Yeoman thinks that the fact that Kentucky ladies carried off all the best premiums for needle work at the St. Louis fair is enough to prove that Kentucky women have more than their loveliness to recommend them. The Yeoman is eminently correct.

The total valuation of property in the State for 1882, as listed by the assessors, and returned to the auditor is as follows: White $360,173,428; colored $3,129,020; total, $363,302,448; valuation, 1881, $359,539,385; increased, $3,763,066. The tax due on the valuation of 1882, at forty-seven and a half cents on each $100, is $1,725,606.62.

News from Virginia indicates that the Democrats will scoop the state at the November election. Mahone has lost his grip and the administration, with all its patronage is unable to keep him in power. Political bosses, whose only strength lies in spoils, must sooner or later go, notwithstanding the Republican idea of boss or machine politics.

The Cincinnati correspondent of the Courier-Journal says:

The new Democratic morning paper, directed by Governor Underwood, which was to have appeared here on the 8th inst., (yesterday) did not appear, but is going ahead all the same. Gov. Underwood and Foreman Logan are in New York getting the presses, a fine building on Race street, corner of Longworth, has been secured, considerable material has already gone in, telegraph matter has been arranged for, and every indication points toward a definite realization of a straight Democratic paper for Cincinnati at an early date.

For the year 1881, the result of the present tariff monopoly, as to taxation and the distribution of its proceeds are tabulated as follows: Revenue received by the government, $193,800,897; bounty received by monopoly recipients, $1,250,000,000. So that, for every dollar paid into the national treasury under the existing tariff, six and a half dollars go into the pockets of the favored few who receive bounty under a vicious system that robs the many for the benefit of the few.

NEWS BREVITIES.

British colliers are moving for better pay.

Chicago brewers have decided to put up the price of beer.

An Irish farmer, shot at Ballina Saturday, died on Monday.

Bloody murder seems to be epidemic at present all over the country.

The receipts of the St. Louis fair last week reached $105,000, against $77,000 last year.

Two young men lost their lives in a Brooklyn hotel by blowing out the gas on going to bed.

A heavy wind-storm, early Monday morning, is reported from the central portion of Ohio.

The prediction of a scarcity of currency the latter part of the month comes from Washington.

Grover Cleveland's letter accepting the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York is out.

Captain J. D. Stevenson, Eighth Cavalry, U. S. A., died at Detroit Monday morning of consumption.

William A. Wheeler is the next to decline the tender of the Republican nomination for congress-at-large in New York.

The Hamlin-Davis suit for possession of the lease of the Grand Opera House, Chicago, has been settled in one of the local courts.

Wolf Cohen & Co., retail clothiers, No. 54 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, made an assignment Monday. Liabilities, $7,500.

A young man named Jacob Becker, employed in the lead-pipe works at Pittsburg, was torn in pieces among machinery Monday morning.

A cabinet meeting was held in New York Tuesday which, it is understood, has for its object action on Secretary Folger's resignation.

Governor Stanford's stable of California horses has arrived at Lexington Ky., in good condition for the trotting meeting which began Tuesday.

The contract for furniture for the new public building at Harrodsburg, Penn., has been awarded to the Robert Mitchell Furniture Company of Cincinnati.

The daughter of a Texas cattle king has just returned from Paris, where she says she walked through the Tuolalorals, and visited the statues of Physis and Catherine de Medical.

The German steamer Herder, from New York for Hamburg, was lost near Cape Race Sunday night. All the passengers and mails were saved. The steamer ran ashore in a fog.

Two sailor boarding house runners at Clifton, Staten Island, while drunk on Sunday quarrelled, and agreed to settle the difficulty with knives. One of them was fatally stabbed.

In the match between the Australian eleven and eighteen New York players, the play of Monday put the Australians so far ahead that it is doubtful if they will go in to make any more runs.

The Spring Lake Ice Company's immense buildings at Vincennes not yet completed, were partially blown down by a heavy wind storm Sunday night. The loss will be considerable.

At Waupaca, Wis., Sunday night, H. C. Mead, a wealthy banker, was murdered in his room and robbed of several thousand dollars in currency, gold and bonds. Mr. Mead was an old bachelor, of eccentric habits, and slept in his bank. No clue to the murderers.

Thirty persons have been poisoned at London, Ont., from eating head cheese manufactured by local butchers. Physicians attribute trouble to the bristles chopped up with the skin of the pork, causing irritation of the stomach's inner coating. It is hoped that all will recover.

A prominent Republican, in close relations with the Administration, declares that Secretary Folger will not resign until after the November election; that in the event of resignation, John C. New will not be appointed to the vacancy; that President Arthur has not Bright's disease or other serious ailment.

Gov. Foster's opinion: The Republican state ticket will be elected by the same majority as last year, less the loss in Cleveland and Cincinnati, whatever it may be. The Republican majority will be from ten to twelve thousand. The Republicans will elect twelve congressmen sure, perhaps fifteen, and possibly seventeen.

Frank Frazee, Charles Smoot, Mr. Seamon, Mr. King, and T. W. Bledsoe have had new tobacco barns built.

The largest tobacco crop that ever was seen in this community is nearly housed, all the farmers have been removing it from their barns during the past week as it has been house-burning badly. In fact some is so badly damaged that the leaves fall from the stalks rotten.

The boiler of a saw-mill, owned by Geo. Young and Harry Smith, near Shelbyville, Ind., exploded Monday morning. Mr. Young was killed and Mr. Smith fatally injured.

"He did a dishonorable thing to me, and that is why I shot him," said Patterson, after firing on Burke in Indianapolis. Burke's displeasing act was to advise a greenhorn, whom Patterson intended to rob, to leave most of his money in a hotel safe before going out on a spree.

French Gardening.

An American market gardener divides his ground into many lots, and plants nearly every variety of truck known to the market. The French gardener gives himself up to the cultivation of a special class or succession of fruits or vegetables, and by long study and practice, by experimenting with various manures, soils and modes of culture, arrives at perfection. He is also much more economical of space and more prodigal of labor than we are, or, in fact than we need be. He seldom suffers his ground to lie fallow; crop succeeds crop in endless rotation; the cauliflower is set among the melon hills, ready to spread as soon as the melons are gathered. Between the rows of asparagus are planted early potatoes, lettuce, etc., in such a manner as to keep the ground constantly fruitful, and when the weather becomes frosty and the sun loses a goodly share of its forcing power large bell glasses are employed, one of which is placed over each plant—especially in the case of the salads—and heat is then concentrated upon it until its full growth is fairly attained. The enormous size of the French asparagus is chiefly due to the manner of planting. Instead of setting the plants closely together, as we do, a space of at least six inches square is allowed to each "stool," which enables it to suck a large amount of nutriment from the soil and become a strong and solid plant. Each stool is also manured repeatedly every season, the soil being carefully scraped away down to the roots, the compost being placed around them and the earth put back again. The French system of cultivating the apple, pear and peach is also peculiar. The trees are all grafted and dwarfed. A strong wire is stretched along in front of each row, about three feet above the ground. Upon this wire a single branch of each tree is trained, and as soon as well started this branch is made, by heavy pruning, the only fruit bearing one on the tree. The consequence is that the entire strength of the tree goes to the nourishing of the fruit upon this branch, and this fruit becomes large and fair in proportion. This process, by-the-by, is borrowed from the Chinese. —The Press.

Lice on Cattle.

The suggestion was recently made in this paper that our National and State entomologists could not do a better thing than to investigate the subject of the external parasites of cattle and to devise means that will insure their destruction. Every person is presumed to know a louse when he sees it, but very few can identify the different varieties of this numerous family of insects, or can tell whether the kind that is found on one class of animals or fowls will live and thrive on another. Comparatively few know how to destroy them without injuring the creature they molest. An Iowa farmer thinks that he has found a remedy that is at once harmless to the animal and harmful to the parasites. In a communication to The Homestead he gives it:

"Take common larkspur seed and steep it, and wash thoroughly every part of the body. I have known one application to destroy every insect and egg. Two will suffice if done thoroughly. I give in addition two remedies that I consider more efficacious than the other: mercurial ointment, kerosene and lard, tobacco smoke, a wash of tobacco or sulphur in salt. These all will sometimes injure the stock. A good remedy is dry dust gathered from the road, and sifted and put in a box for winter, (nature's remedy); rub it well in, and as they hatch repeat. Also pulverized charcoal mixed with dust is still better. I have heard that fine Indian meal or shorts were good, used in the same way. I know they are good to apply inside. When an animal is affected it should be immediately removed from the other stock and thoroughly treated, and not allowed to run until the whole herd is covered. The old-fashioned larkspur is the best, as it bears the most seed and is perennial. A small patch will supply all the seed you will or ought to need." —Chicago Times.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District. ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunion to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great. Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. j27d.
